

Cast of Characters

Bezoseelzebub: The President of the United States of America, is in his luxury space yacht. His prime directive is to escape the planet that he's deemed doomed, instead of protecting it. He's offered the PCs a presidential pardon and a seat on his yacht in exchange for bringing his daughter Alice back. He implants massive digital clock bombs on everyone's chest and gives them 4 hours (game time) or he'll explode them to detonate the space station. He equips the PCs with a space hang glider to get to the MekaVoid.

Black Hole Suns of Anarchy: These mechanized robut space bikers ride on cosmic choppers. They wear a leather cut that says "Black Hole Suns" on top, has a robo-squid logo in the center, and MekaVoid on the bottom. Their kvlt worships The Void, a chaos god, and are led by the prophet ZORP! They're in tune with their specific bike that matches their personality. Five BHSOA can form together to make a mini-kaiju.

Prospectatrons: The most common entities on the MekaVoid. Becoming a full BHSOA member is a year-long initiation process. These low level goons ride cyber-scooters until they've earned riding a cosmic chopper. Their goal is to run their own charter on a conquered planet or give their lives in reverence to The Void.

ZORP!: This floating, 15-foot tall, techno-squid's heart is a black hole sun that was gifted to this prophet by The Void. This allows ZORP! to create a wormhole to travel anywhere in space when combined with another contained black hole. ZORP!'s ink mutates organic material into techno-mechanical chromed machines. People don't die from the ink. They're reborn mechanized in this baptism of The Void. They've weaponized the ink with the MekaVoid to crop dust and mutate entire planets. They're spreading charters across the cosmos. This conduit to the MekaVoid has a cut with eight cutoff sleeves.

Alice: is in chains in the Temple of The Void about to get inked. She's the president's daughter, and her friends call her Peaches. She infiltrated the BHSOA and gained their trust. She wants to save her planet. Her goal is to trick ZORP! into creating a wormhole in the power core, then chopping ZORP! in half mid-teleport by sabotaging the equipment.

Overview: The president hires the PCs to kidnap his daughter who's joined a mechanized space-biker kvlt run by a genocidal techo-squid that's turning organic worlds into cyber hellscapes.

Garage: This repair workshop has lots of parts and spare bikes ready for the PCs to steal. There's a motorcycle jousting arena where the BHSOA settle scores, and where they'll send captured PCs. Choose your weapons and ride. They love bloodsport with fleshy organics. If you do well, they might make you a Prospectatron through the ink ritual in the Temple of The Void.

The Bridge: The captain of the MekaVoid is a giant, humanoid mass of wires that are fused into the ship. They pilot the ship as if it was their motorcycle. A railing surrounds the captain. Visitors can lounge in the cushy seating in front of the viewport to watch where they're going.

The MekaVoid: is a stone temple space station that's shaped like a nautilus and glows like a negative sun. There are less than 100 upper leadership BHSOA members here. The rest of the crew are low level Prospectatrons. When you stare into the MekaVoid, it stares back at you.

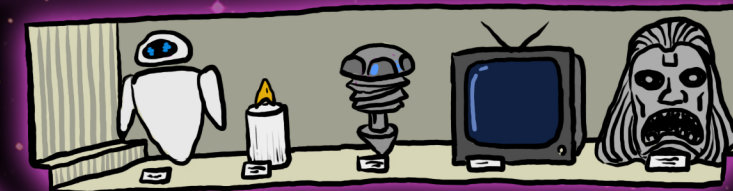

Roll 5d4, one for each column below to determine the personality and characteristics of individual BHSOA and prospectatrons

Burly	half-robut, half centaur bike	outlaw	who loves	partying
Trigger happy	repair bot	cyber supremacist	who hates	fighting
Scrawny	bat-winged	punk	who fears	proselytizing
Grizzled old	transmopher between robut & moto-vehicle	metalhead	who demands	A hobby

The Clubhouse: This space biker bar is where everyone hangs out playing holo-pool and cyber-darts. If the PCs can disguise themselves, they'll be able to get lots of info, especially if they prove their mettle with a friendly bar fight.

Trophy Room: This is a collection of the organic things that they've mechanized with the ZORP! ink, collected from the worlds that they've changed. This is a great place for sci-fi easter eggs like a severed robo-hand clutching a laser sword, hell-infused vid screen, Alien spaceship, pitch black goggles and an iron giant heart.

Temple of The Void: The entrance to this holy site says "Won't You Come" over the door. The interior is a theatre-in-the-round filled with BHSOA logos in stained glass. They all worship The Void. They do the ritual ceremony of mechanizing the organic with the ZORP! Ink on the center dais. Their goal is to reach nirvana after they've voided enough souls.

Weapons Room: the tentacles of the MekaVoid are able to weaponize the ZORP! Ink to crop dust entire planets, turning them into cyberized metalscapes. It requires hundreds of BHSOA bikers to fire the ink laser. They happily give their lives to become "one with the void."

Fuel Depot: fill up your space hogs with unleaded void juice in this old timey drive-up-to-the-pump gas station. This is also the staging ground and launching pad for BHSOA planetary invasions.
